APA (American Psychological Association) style is most commonly used to cite sources within the social sciences. This resource, revised according to the 6th edition, provides a template to cite a book using the APA citation format. We also offer style guides for the MLA, Chicago, and Turabian styles. To have your references appear correctly, please consult the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association.

For more information, please consult the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association. When making reference to an entire book, article, or other work, you only have to cite the work once, at its first mention. There are slight differences depending on which style you are using. More Information: See pages 174-179 of the APA Manual 6th edition for further guidance.

A secondary source is a citation or reference you discovered in a book, article, or other work. According to The APA Style Guide to Electronic References, 6th edition, you can use the following format if the book you are using is only available in a digital electronic version of print book.
